

Volunteers help to pack the books from the Fundamental Library of INION

25 February 2015. For the first time the Institute has called for volunteers to prepare the books for the transportation to locations of their long-term storage. The packing of books began yesterday. Some volunteers prepared boxes, others packed books and worked with the library funds. During the day nearly 25 thousand books were packed by volunteers and INION staff, preferably editions in foreign languages. This work will continue. It is expected that INION will need help of the volunteers for another week. The books are transported and placed in the new storage locations by the staff of INION and specialized companies.

Earlier the Facebook group "INION RAS. Help to address the effects of the fire. Group for volunteers" was created, where INION Directorate informed the staff and volunteers on the current situation with INION. The group has over 2000 participants to date.
